

Health Guarantee & Puppy Care Instructions

We guarantee that every puppy is healthy when it leaves here. If you take your puppy to the vet within 7 days after you pick up the puppy, and the vet finds an unforeseen congenital abnormality, we will either refund your money or allow you to pick out a different puppy, as available. Our puppies & dogs have not been exposed to infectious diseases here. If your puppy is exposed to an infectious disease after it leaves here, this is not covered under the health guarantee. Please pay particular attention to this if you have recently lost a dog or puppy! Infectious diseases are not covered by our health guarantee, as we have no control over what the puppy is exposed to after it leaves our home. We also cannot guarantee that your puppy will never develop any health problems, just like a pediatrician cannot guarantee that a child will never develop any health problems in the future. Some things are just not able to be predicted. Our parents are free of diseases, disorders, and health problems or we would not breed them. That means the puppies are less likely to develop problems. However, we can't guarantee that puppies will never develop a problem.

Please Be aware that vaccinations sometimes fail for various reasons, and a dog does not develop full immunity to some diseases until they are a full year old and have had all their puppy shots, including a booster at the age of 1 year. We do guarantee our puppies are VWD clear. If you are not willing or able to make sure that your puppy gets ALL of his/hers scheduled vaccines and boosters, please do not purchase a puppy.

Being informed is a good alternative, and a strict adherence to all vaccination schedules and a veterinary program is a must. There are many illnesses that can affect dogs. Puppies under a year old are especially vulnerable to a few diseases. If you keep yourself informed, you can avoid health problems and illnesses in your puppy.

Don't wait a few weeks or a month and then take the puppy to the vet. Do it right away, as soon as possible. Don't wait until your puppy is sick to introduce him to the vet. Get into the habit of seeing your vet on a regular basis. Think of him as your puppy's "pediatrician". The vet is a good person to get to know, and taking your dog to the vet for shots, health checkup, etc., is a good habit to get into right at the very beginning. Puppy "babies" require the same attention and care -- vaccines, well checkups, vitamins, etc. -- as human children and maybe more. If you are not willing to commit to doing this, please buy a hamster or some other animal that does not require the care and attention that a puppy will require.

When you buy a puppy, you will receive a very nice shot record envelope, with dates, ages, and even the labels from the vaccination bottles. You can put future shots, and vet information inside the envelope and keep it for future reference. Always, ALWAYS, take the envelope with you to the vet's office. That way, he will know the vaccines, wormers, etc., that your pet has already had and will not inadvertently give him

We monitor ALL of our puppies on a constant daily basis, and we are quite aware of the health and well-being of each dog. Our pregnant females are pampered, spoiled, and given extra supplements, etc., to make sure they are healthy. While nursing, they receive supplemental vitamins and extra treats to make sure they stay healthy while nursing and that the puppies are given a good start. We start our puppies off well and try to keep them that way throughout the time they are with us. We encourage you to also keep them that way after they become your babies by establishing and maintaining a good health maintenance schedule with your veterinarian. Please keep these instructions in a safe place, preferably in your Purina Puppy Envelope, where they can be referred to easily.

If you have any questions at all, please call us. Please enjoy your new baby!
